A cascade of rills

Shivers the river

The bedchamber lip wells

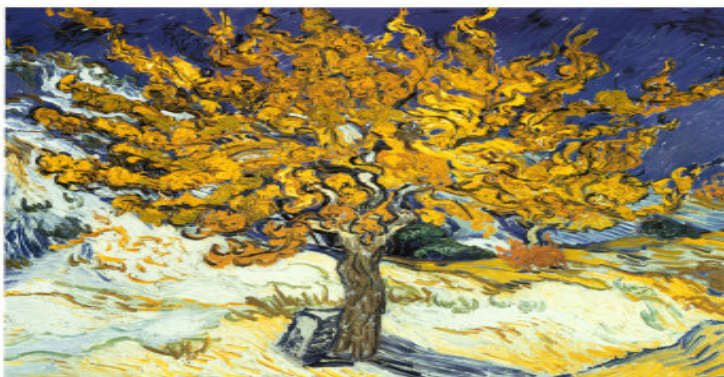

And the bottomdwellers quiver

A spiny iridescent chariot

Crests the current bathed in crystal

Vincent van Gogh The Mulberry Tree

Emanating a stealthy riot

A voice rings true to every nerve

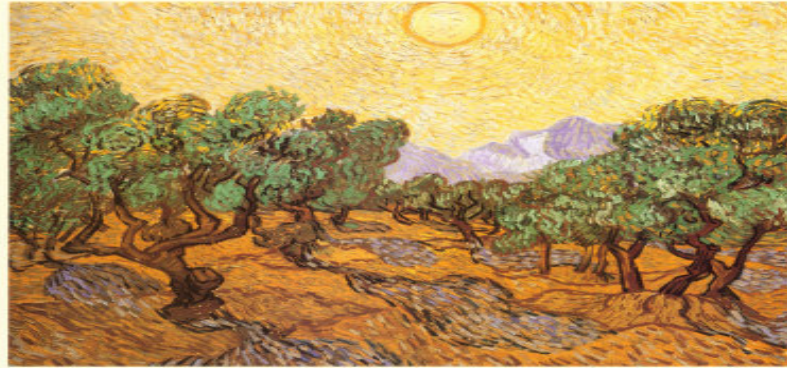

It echoes through the sweet enclosure

Ferns grow fragrant with vibrant verve

Along the banks with frank composure

VINCENT VAN GOGH
THE MINNEAPOLIS INSTITUTE OF ARTS

The driver urges on his streaming steeds

And disappears, his forehead gleaming

Leaving the listing, fumbling reeds,

The buttercups coughing, the pebbles beaming
